WEATHER ALIBIS

In glancing over the exchanges which I find daily piled up on my desk I find an epidemic of what I would call the "climatic alibi."

In several parts of the state, in fact in many portions thereof recently it has been as hot as—well, anyway it has been hot. Palm Beach suits and other clothes of extremely light material have come out of their winter and spring hiding places and are abundantly in evidence. People walk the streets a living, moving example of a Turkish bath and indulge in obnoxious remarks concerning the activities of Old Sol.

BE CAREFUL

Such criticism is a family or community affair exclusively and not betide the stranger within the gates who dares comment adversely upon the brand of climate that particular locality invariably furnishes at this time of the year. He is likely to get something besides a sun stroke.

COMPARISON PROOF

The newspaper, always loyal to its home town, takes up the blades and by comparison proves, to its own satisfaction, at least, that the climate is "unusual" and for equability and health there is none in the world in the same class.

While the spirit of loyalty is to be commended it causes a doubt to arise in the mind as to the editor's conception of veracity. It is strongly reminiscent of the participant in a street fight, who, when attention is called to his horns de combat condition says: "You should see the other fellow's!"

Guardsmen Will Take Part In Flag Day Fete

A detachment of National Guardsmen of the 15th Regiment of Infantry will participate in the parade to be held Tuesday evening in observance of Flag Day. D. M. Bradley, general chairman of the Elks' committee in charge of the affair, announced last night.

In addition, to the infantrymen organized labor, drum corps, bugle corps, fraternal and civic organizations, veterans and auxiliaries and city officials will be in the parade. The 60-piece band of the San Francisco county council of the American Legion will accompany the marchers.

Lieutenant Governor George Hatfield will be the speaker of the evening at the program to be held at Memorial Hall park. The officers of Richmond Lodge of Elks, directed by Clifford C. Anglim, will give the flag ritual.

The event is expected to be one of the largest ever held here.

Flag Day Observance Is Urged

On Tuesday evening, June 11th, at 7:30 o'clock, under the joint auspices of the Richmond Lodge of Elks and the Veterans organizations of Richmond, there will be held an observance to the flag of our country.

There will be a parade starting from First and Macdonald avenue, ending at Sixteenth street, and counter-marching back to Memorial Park where the full history of the flag will be displayed and dramatized by the officers of Richmond Lodge of Elks and the Veterans.

Lieutenant Governor George Hatfield will be the speaker of the evening, and I know will give an interesting talk on the flag, which the general public should not miss.

Therefore, as a department officer of one of the Veterans organizations, I respectfully urge that the citizens of our city turn out and take part in this observance. If there ever was a time in our history that loyalty to our country was needed, it is now, and no better way of showing that loyalty could be displayed than by observance to our flag on its birthday, June 14th, and which will be observed in Richmond June 11th.

LEGISLATURE DEADLOCKED ON TAX BILLS

ASSEMBLY IN REFUSAL TO APPROVE ACT CONGRESS VOTES TO EXTEND NRA

600 DRESS MAKERS MAY JOIN STRIKE

SACRAMENTO, June 7.—UP—Action on revenue bills to finance the $376,000,000 budget was at a standstill tonight after it was apparent that the two houses of the legislature were deadlocked on three major taxation proposals.

While the Senate passed the amended income tax bill calling for a rate one-fourth that of the Federal levy the lower House refused to concur in the amendments and the important measure was expected to be sent to "free conference."

SPLIT IS TOLD

Indicative of the split over this source of revenue, the Senate passed the one-fourth rate by a vote of 31 to 2. Rushed to the lower House the bill met defeat when the Assembly refused by a vote of 52 to 5 to concur in the amendments which reduced the one-third rate originally set up in the Chatters' bill.

The Assembly gave little consideration to the modified bill favored by the Senate.

NO DEBATE

Assemblyman Ford Chatters, author of the measure, asked for a negative vote when the bill was presented for concurrence and the Assembly cast its vote without debate.

In direct contrast to the recommendation of the joint steering committee, a resolution which would place the Assembly on record against assessment of an ad valorem tax was before the lower House tonight.

NO WORK SUNDAY

An ad valorem tax was recommended by the steering committee as a substitute for the automobile tax which the Senate refused to pass by a necessary two-thirds majority.

The Assembly voted against working Sunday and it was indicated that final adjournment could not be taken before next Wednesday or Thursday.

Scioto Pyramid Pays Honor To Lodge Officers

Masters of the various Blue Lodges of the district were guests last evening of Richmond Pyramid of Scioto at a meeting held at the Richmond Clubhouse. The affair, arranged by Homer Patterson, was opened with a 6:30 dinner. A. Bolas, grand orator, was the speaker of the evening and a musical program was enjoyed. Past masters who are members of the Scioto assisted in arranging for the affair.

At the business meeting plans were made for the Eastbay Scioto picnic at Linda Vista park near Mission San Jose, Sunday, Alameda, Oakland, Berkeley and Richmond. Scioto and their friends will participate.

June 21 is the date of the next session of the lodge at which time plans will be made to attend the Scioto's ceremonial at Sunnyvale on June 22 at which a large class of candidates will be inducted.

The lodge will visit Alameda on June 26, and Berkeley, June 28. An important meeting will be held July 5. Dinner will be served under the direction of the line officers headed by Frank Tiller.

Deceased leaves his sons, Louis, Lucien and Rene; his widow, Mrs. Louise De La Briandais; two sisters, Mrs. Victor De Vigne of Berkeley and Mrs. August Turpin of Oakland; and two brothers, Joseph and Aristide. Two grandchildren also survive.

AGE LEADER OF 'G' MEN IS ON CASE

ELK CITY, Ida., June 7.—UP—One of the greatest thrills of activity in the hunt for kidnapers of George Weyerhaeuser, 3, Tacoma, died suddenly today when Floyd White, postmaster and general store proprietor here, said he had checked 10 Federal reserve notes within the range of the ransom bills' serial numbers but found they were not ransom bills.

White's telephone call to Elmer Howard Altman at Grangeville, a town that he had identified "IX" or "seven" ransom bill, caused officers from Lewiston to Grangeville to block roads.

The "suspect" in a Wallace, Idaho, were found to be innocent. The money they spent in Elk City was not ransom money.

SEARCH CONTINUES

TACOMA, Wash., June 7.—UP—Search for the kidnapers of George Weyerhaeuser, 3, narrowed tonight to a methodical elimination of blind trails, spreading of the activities of Department of Investigation Agents throughout the west, and virtual clearing of three men suspected earlier in the hunt.

The scattered abduction gang that obtained $200,000 for the safety of captive George was sought in Portland, Eastern Washington Idaho and other areas.

SUSPECT HELD

Pat R. Kelly, laughing at police information he was on the Federal list of suspects, was arrested at Portland. Portland officers, notified because Federal men have "failed to cooperate," laughed with him.

Until five days before the kidnaping, Kelly was in jail at Portland. Detectives said he had been seen on Portland streets every day since his release, that he is "broken" and (Continued on Page 8)

Relief Roll Big Shoot Workers Will Open Be Given Aid Here Today

WASHINGTON, June 7.—UP—President Roosevelt tonight ordered that persons on public relief in May receive preference for jobs created by the $4,000,000,000 reemployment program.

This ruling was made in an executive order prescribing rules and regulations for employment under the recovery drive.

There were approximately 19,000,000 on relief rolls last month. The administration hopes to create 3,500,000 jobs with its huge fund during the drive.

A feature of the match will be a big banquet at 6:30 this evening at the Hotel Carmichael. City officers will attend. Mayor George Imlach (Continued on Page 8)

Reports Heard By Vets Camp 'At Busy Meet

Reports of delegates who attend of the recent Berkeley convention were heard last evening when the Admiral Dewey Camp of United Spanish War Veterans convened at Memorial Hall with Jack Bodin, the commander, in the chair.

The camp drafted a letter which was sent to Congressman Albert R. Carter from this district, praising and thanking him for his efforts in behalf of war veterans.

Several matters of vital importance to the camp were discussed during the business meeting of the group.

Trial For Women In Raids Delayed

Trial of three women, Lorraine Wilson, Marie Bennett, and Kay Felton, who were arrested in raids on the Green Parlor in San Pablo by sheriff's deputies has been postponed until June 18. The girl, who appeared before Justice of the Peace Life Grover.

Miss Wilson and Miss Felton have figured in previous raids on the establishment.

Pawn

THIS LITTLE girl is Jane Bannister, 6 years old, daughter of Ann Harding, screen star, and Harry Bannister, divorced mate of the actress. Jane is now the center of action in California courts brought by Bannister, who desires the child's custody and who is contesting the validity of Miss Harding's recent divorce in Reno.

THE vote was 281 to 136. Almost simultaneously, the vote, President Roosevelt announced acceptance of the resignation of NRA Chairman Donald R. Richberg, effective June 16. He added the hope, however, that Richberg would remain in Washington for a short time after that date, to help transfer his duties to the succeeding administration.

Life Term Is Given Bremer Kidnap Chief

ST. PAUL, June 7.—UP—Volney Davis, Edward G. Bremer kidnaping captured last week in Chicago, today was sentenced to life imprisonment as he and four others implicated in the $200,000 abduction were brought into federal court for sentence. He pleaded guilty.

Sentence was pronounced by Judge M. M. Joyce, who presided at the trial at which Arthur (Doc) Barker and four others were convicted.

John J. (Doc) McLaughlin, chief money changer in the kidnaping and former Illinois political power, was sentenced to five years.

Harold Alderton, who arranged the hideout at Bensenville, Ill., where Bremer was held captive 22 days while ransom negotiations were being conducted, was sentenced to 20 years.

Elmer Farmer, who aided Alderton in hideout preparations and pleaded guilty, likewise was sentenced to 20 years.

James J. Wilson, chauffeur for Dr. John P. Moore, and also a money changer, was sentenced to five years.

John J. Lauchlin, Alderton and Farmer will serve their terms in Leavenworth prison. Wilson was ordered to the federal reformatory at Chillicothe, O.

The life sentence for Davis was the third such punishment imposed as a result of the kidnaping. Barker and Oliver Ford were sentenced to life immediately after conviction. Barker is at Leavenworth and Berg at Joliet, Ill., penitentiary where he was serving a previous life term.

Price-Cutting War Is Raging In Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, June 7.—UP—A top tide of falling prices and lengthened working hours virtually was cutting the national recovery code set up in the Pacific South-west area. It was disclosed tonight in a report of code compliance authorities a part of a nation-wide checkup.

The survey showed retailers, price-cutting wars were coming between them in a bid to drive out of business those who were cutting prices below whole sale cost and in nearly all industries cutting prices to new lows.

Working hours have been lengthened in nearly 50 per cent of the grocery, drug, liquor, bakery and tobacco selling industries.

Auto Damage Case Appealed

MARTINEZ, June 7. An appeal from a justice court judgment in favor of the plaintiff today was filed in superior court here by attorneys for the defendant in a suit instituted by Edward J. Hoff against Frank Mendoza.

Hoff had asked $162.60 judgment for damage to his machine in an automobile collision near Pinole on October 14, 1934. Judgment for that amount was given by Justice of the Peace Katherine V. Terry.

Attorneys T. M. Carlson and Redmond V. Collins of Richmond are appealing for the defendant.

Richberg Is Through As Agency Head

WASHINGTON, June 7.—UP—The House passed a resolution today extending NRA until April and inviting American business to govern itself through voluntary codes.

Sometime between now and June 16—when NRA's charter expires—the Senate will act on the resolution.

Almost simultaneously, the vote, President Roosevelt announced acceptance of the resignation of NRA Chairman Donald R. Richberg, effective June 16. He added the hope, however, that Richberg would remain in Washington for a short time after that date, to help transfer his duties to the succeeding administration.

Death Sentence

What the NRA got today was both a death sentence and a reprieve. Under this resolution the Federal government surrenders all power to impose and enforce restrictions on wages, hours and working conditions. But a skeleton organization is maintained against the time when the New Deal may want to bring in legislation reasserting its authority over American business.

In full war equipment, the Japanese soldiers practiced with machinegun units in many sections of the Chinese city, outside the foreign-controlled sections in which most Americans, British and others reside.

Short Ender Is The Winner In Spring Series

For the first time in the $1,000 Spring championship series, Julian Par, of the Patrick Brothers kennel, won last night. It was surprising because San Luis Rey, who finished second, had closed at 3 to 2 because of a record and was the "dog to beat" in the four dog field, but the outsider, as is not unusual in the sport fields, provided the punch that kept the El Cerrito Kennel Club crowd on edge. Miss Cardinal was eliminated.

The elimination of Miss Cardinal proved disconcerting to the boys who have been playing Pete Morcon's dogs. Morcon's Lionheart won the double to return $75 with Sy Simpson's Free Gate last night, driving hard in the stretch to beat Vern Shatt's M. Shadow and Mrs. S. E. Hill's Jack Lambert.

Miss Hill announces that three pups, sired by Sylvia's King and are now 15 months 2 days old, are ready for racing at El Cerrito and will be schooled shortly. Her pups are in the same class as those by T. J. Court-Cool, Ceres, owned by Clyde Rhodes of Custer Valley. These young dogs will be starting soon at El Cerrito, should make racing history.

Tom at the El Cerrito track offers another outstanding card. In the future future will be Sylvia's King, Play Miller, Happy Laddie, May Day and Olive Gay, all matched in a special seven-dog field that should be breath-taking.

The 7-1/2 mile marathon with Jimmie Flint, Suspicious Alice, Con's Model and Laddie's Mission promises results.

YANKEES ARE DEFEATED BY BOSTON NINE

NEW YORK, June 7. (UP)—A full game was sliced off the New York Yankees' lead in the American league race today when the Boston Red Sox no-hit the Yankees, 2-1.

Johnny Welch, who had pitched only one complete game until today, bested Johnny Branca in a pitcher's duel, in which each man allowed seven hits.

Breaking a three game losing streak, the Chicago White Sox defeated the Detroit Tigers, 9-8, and moved within two games of the leading Yankees. Although rapped for 15 hits, Ted Lyons went the route and scored his sixth triumph of the season. Gerald Walker hit two homers for the Ticks.

Pounding out 16 hits, Washington defeated Philadelphia, 11-6, and extended its winning streak to three straight. Bob Johnson, Athletics, hit his 10th home run of the season.

Tying the score in the ninth, the New York Giants defeated the Boston Braves in the 10th, 2-1, and increased their lead in the National league to 5 1/2 games. Mel Ott's homer in the ninth tied the score and Bill Terry singled in the 10th to drive in the winning run. Roy Parmelee scored his seventh victory of the season.

Cincinnati snapped Pittsburgh's five game winning streak, 15-1, and dropped the Pirates into third place. Paul Derringer won his seventh victory of the season. The Reds pounded four Pittsburgh batters for 15 hits.

Brooklyn slugged six Philadelphia pitchers for 15 hits and beat the Phillies, 11-9. The veteran Dazzy Vance got credit for the victory. Fourteen two base hits were made in the game, nine of them by the Phillies.

Rain prevented the Cubs-Cardinals doubleheader and the Browns-Indians game.

FILTER PLANT AT ORINDA IS IN OPERATION

Water furnished by the East Bay Municipal Utility District, which has always been noted for its softness, has recently been further improved along this line through the Orinda filtration plant, according to announcement made by John S. Jones, chief engineer and general manager.

The new filtration plant, which is under construction during the past year, is located at the junction of the Lafayette and the Orinda tunnels near the town of Orinda. The major portion of the water which formerly passed into the San Pablo reservoir and thence through a tunnel to the San Pablo filter plant on the hills above El Cerrito, is now passing direct through the Orinda plant, thence to the Claremont tunnel and into the distribution mains.

Water furnished from San Pablo, under San Leandro and other District reservoirs, which is mostly from the Mokelumne supply, has been exceptionally low in hardness and has been well suited for all domestic and industrial uses. However, the water did pick up a small amount of hardness in passing through these terminal reservoirs. The water now being served through the Orinda filter plant has a hardness of less than two grains per gallon which places the East Bay among the most favored areas of the country.

One important feature, however, pointed out, is that the water will be cooler. Passing from the Mokelumne reservoir direct into the plant without open storage and with the temperature service being improved and the supply being more uniform.

It is in the operation of the plant that the water will make substantial improvement, and other factors which will be improved.

By leaving the San Pablo filter plant which would be the final destination for the water, the chemical plant will also be materially improved as the water coming direct from the reservoir has during the past year been found to be of a high quality. It is only necessary to remove the suspended organic matter and impurities. This, at the Orinda plant, is accomplished by the use of sand, gravel, and sedimentation. The water is then treated with other chemicals which will result in the plant's operation will pay for itself in a few years.

The new Orinda plant will, under the new plan of operation, supply water to the district. The plant will be supplemented by the San Pablo and El Cerrito plants as required to meet the water requirements of the district. Consumption of water in the District was 58 million gallons last Monday according to 5 million gallons per day record. On Tuesday the consumption was 56 million gallons, also a high figure. Average consumption for the month of May was 52 million gallons daily.

TEACHER DROWNED
SALEM, Ore., June 7.—Marvin Robert Kelso, 21, of West Salem, drowned in the Willamette River here last night when attempting to swim an exhibition of underwater swimming. His body was recovered.

Hollywood Film Shop

HOLLYWOOD, June 7.—UP—How do they get into the movies? Here's how it happened to Robert Taylor, the handsome young man who didn't, and still doesn't, want to be a star.

Son of a successful physician, Taylor planned to attend Northwestern University and become a doctor. His closest friend hadn't the cash for Northwestern, so Taylor changed his mind, went to Deane College near his home town in Nebraska and paid his pal's tuition.

Halfway through college, he decided to change to science and economics, and so, chucking medicine, he went west to Pomona College in California. Pomona prides itself on student orators, and Taylor became one of them, catching the attention of the dramatics director, who persuaded him to play a role in the college's rendition of "Journey's End."

He made such a good Captain Stanhope in the college drama that he came to the stage door and invited Taylor to take a screen test.

While awaiting the studio's report, Taylor decided to go to Europe and study science, but his income suddenly slumped, and he was glad when the studio offered him a contract. Studio officials wanted him to go to work at once, but Taylor finished college first.

Finally lured to the M-G-M lot, he was placed under Oliver Hiss, noted dramatic coach. Subsequently he appeared in "A Wicked Woman," "Society Doctor," and he took the masculine lead in "Times Square Lady." Scientific yearnings still rankle under Taylor's hat, however, and he cares little to see his name in the lights.

"I have no desire whatever to be a star," he declared. "All I want to do is continue to be a leading man as long as I remain in films."

No Excitement Attends Exchange Prime Ministers

LONDON, June 7.—UP—Quietly and without excitement, the British government changed hands today. James Ramsay MacDonald, the Scottish Laborite who came into power at the height of the boom six years ago stepped down and King George V named Stanley Baldwin, conservative chief and first president of the council, to succeed him as Prime Minister.

Baldwin, acting with equal dispatch on a pre-arranged schedule, made public his new cabinet. Its official complexion remained about the same, as that of the MacDonald ministry, essentially conservative.

The Baldwin cabinet has 15 conservatives out of 22 ministries, two posts having been added. The Marquis of Zetland was additional Conservative party member, while Malcolm MacDonald, son of the retiring prime minister, replaced Lord Sankey as new national Laborite minister.

DRAMA OFFSET BY HUMOR IN FOX PROGRAM

Another smashing two feature program will open at the Fox theater tomorrow when Paul Muni in "Black Fury" and Mary Boland and Charlie Ruggles in "People Will Talk" start screening.

Muni has a role which matches in dramatic intensity his portrayal of "Fugitive From A Chain Gang" in "Black Fury."

Though bleak and stark in its actual settings, the characters have a warmth and humanness that makes them always convincing. The familiar scenes of a coal mining town and an entire coal mine were reproduced for this production.

Karen Morley, Barton MacLane, Mae March, Henry O'Neill, William Garson, John Qualen and J. Carroll Nash are in the cast.

"People Will Talk" is the "after forty" love life of a pair of suburbanites who are happily mated and live a comfortable, pleasant life until their daughter and her husband run into one of those inevitable early-marriage difficulties. The daughter taking it far too seriously, leaves her husband and returns to mama.

The film reaches a climax when Papa Ruggles tries to help daughter out of the mess and gets into a far greater mess himself.

Leila Hyams, Dean Jagger, Jack Mulhall and Edward Brophy support the stars.

TWO HITS TODAY

George Raft and Ben Bernie in "Stolen Harmony," plus Richard Barthelmess in "4 Hours to Kill" will screen for the last times today at the Fox theater.

Suicide Girl Is Identified By Her Sweetheart

SAN FRANCISCO, June 7.—UP—Wilson Sheldon, San Francisco, today identified the body of a mysterious young girl who jumped three stories to her death from a Burlingame hotel window Tuesday as that of his sweetheart, Patricia O'Neill, 18.

Sheldon denied he was the man who fled in his shirt-sleeves just before the girl leaped. A note Miss O'Neill left to Sheldon indicated she contemplated suicide, police said.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—When it comes to the reorganization of the NRA, there is one thing he intends to watch closer than anything else. This is the past tendency of Blue Eagle rulers to let the representatives of Big Business dominate NRA administration. The original conception of the NRA was a tripartite partnership of business, labor and the public. No one group was to be supreme.

Just the opposite of this occurred. The key administrators of the NRA were taken from the ranks of industry. High pressure lobbyists who thrived under the Old Deal took a new lease on life in putting across special privileges in codes under the New Deal. The NRA became a lopsided picture.

Some of the President's advisers are now telling him that if the NRA had kept on its original chartered course, resentment against the Blue Eagle might have been less. The Supreme Court decision might have been different.

They think that with the NRA reorganized there can be a complete house cleaning; that industry has been so scared at the spectre of losing the NRA it will be more amenable to reason and the Administration can write its own ticket.

BARBER

George Peck's Import-Export Bank may be stymied, but here is the latest barber deal proposed to the President. It is from a Wyoming woodsman, who writes:

"Mr. Roosevelt, for the past year I have been trying to get on some of your relief work. I have not been able to make the grade. So I have finally come to the conclusion I can't.

"I have a lot of rabbits. I could use their fur for clothes and they are very good eating. But I don't have any gun to kill them with.

"So I wonder if you couldn't take me a rifle. Now I won't ask for a good gun, just any old kind that will kill a rabbit. If you can do this little favor, I sure would appreciate it."

NOT FOR RUSSIA

Only a handful of people know it, but the State Department was responsible for letting valuable military contracts slip through American fingers.

Soviet Russian attaches in the United States had approached the manufacturers of tanks and bombing planes. The orders ran into several millions, the American firms were enthusiastic.

A few days later, however, the Russian agents came back to find them suddenly lukewarm. No concrete reason was given for this coolness. Vague excuses were offered to the effect that Russian credit would have to be looked up, that the factories were already busy.

"You understand," emphasized the Russians, "that this is to be an entirely cash business."

NEW YORK, June 7.—New York, ladies whose hearts have been broken by cruel man's shifting affections won't be able to cash in on their misery any more. Love-hall suits have been outlawed at the state legislature, and from now on the girls will have to take care of themselves, poor things. . . . San Russell has a ven for all things that move, whether on land or sea.

Rosoff recently bought up the Hudson River Night Line, and held a celebration party for himself the other night on board one of the steamers. . . . He's the fellow who built some of the city's subways, but now he's coming up for cooler breezes. . . . Here's a tip: The Rainbow Room in Radio City won't let you come into its gilded precincts unless you're all dolled up in evening clothes. . . . But you can loiter outside in the Cocktail Lounge in civilian outfit and still get the aerial view of the city below. . . . "The Great Waltz" is about ready to close after nine months in which one 75,000 people paid about $1,500,000 to see the spectacle. . . . Other musicals will rush in to fill the void, however. . . . Earl Carroll's "Sketchbook" has just opened, and early in July comes "Hollywood Holiday" with Bob Daniels, Ann Lyon, Skelton Gallagher and other such film folks. . . . The West insists on meeting the East these days.

Price Protection Is Planned By AAA

DETROIT, June 7.—Secretary Wallace said today price protection for the consumer as well as the farmer is embodied in proposed changes in the AAA shortly to be submitted to congress.

"What we are shooting at is making the grocery bill a definite percentage of the consumer's dollar," he said during a press conference. He is here to address the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

HOUSE-PARTY MURDER

Harriet Blanes, wealthy old invalid, is murdered in her bed in her isolated country house. In the house, aside from the servants, are her niece and nephew, Joan and Rickey Blanes; three men—Rodney Mains, Stephen Carls and William Grove—whom she had invited for the week-end; Timothy Reilly, whom Joan had invited; and Ruth Andrews, trained nurse. As a blizzard has cut them off from the outside world, they are forced to take things into their own hands. A missing $100,000 necklace is believed to have been the motive for the crime. Then, Rickey is murdered, and the necklace is found in his room. It is put in the safe, and the men, two at a time, take turns guarding it. While Timothy and Rodney are on guard, William takes Joan aside and suggests that Ruth Andrews might be a private detective.

CHAPTER XXVI IT TOOK Joan several moments to recover from her surprise.

"What makes you think that?" she asked finally. William pursed his lips. "Observation. The way she goes about things. The confidence your aunt had in her."

It would explain lots of things if Ruth were a detective. Joan thought. I would explain why Aunt Harriet had told her about the necklace, but William couldn't know that. He must have some other reasons for his suspicions.

"The way she does things. Aurie's confidence in her. That doesn't prove anything," Joan disagreed. "It's not funny for a sick old woman to trust her nurse."

"She had a sudden belief that all the men in the house, he was the most dangerous. To her immense relief, Meyers came to announce luncheon. After telling him to take two trays to Timothy and Rodney in the dining-room, where Stephen and Ruth were already waiting.

LUNCHEON was a silent, dull meal, and soon over. Afterwards, William strolled out on the veranda for a breath of air, and Stephen composed himself on the couch in the hall for a nap. Ruth disappeared upstairs.

Joan went to the library and tried to read. Outside, the wind continued to howl, and the snow to fall. A heavy discouragement weighed on her.

When Timothy, relieved from guard at four o'clock, came to join her, she noticed that he also was depressed.

"Is your shoulder paining you?" she asked anxiously. "It isn't that," he murmured. "It's just that I don't seem to be getting any nearer the bottom of this mystery. I had a theory, but it went up in smoke. There doesn't seem to be any solution."

She told him the results of her search upstairs that morning. When she came to the footprint in Rodney's room, he sighed. "Just another complication. As though we didn't have enough already. And yet, somewhere there is a key to it all."

"If the imprint of the heel was made by blood," Joan asked, "how could it have got there without other tracks leading from Rickey's room down the hall?"

To her surprise, Timothy answered readily. "By walking or running on tiptoes," he said. "Then Rodney. . . ." Joan whispered, "could have."

"Rodney was unconscious at the time," Timothy reminded her. They were both silent for several minutes. Joan wanted to tell him about her talk with William, but Timothy seemed to be weighing something in his mind and she was afraid to break the thread of his thoughts.

DAVE LAMSON THIRD TRIAL IN SEPTEMBER

SAN JOSE, June 7.—UP—For the third time, David Lamson will face a judge and jury September 23 on charges of wife murder.

The date for the new trial was set today on motion of Edwin V. McKenzie, chief defense counsel, with the consent of the prosecution. Lamson was convicted in his first trial and sentenced to death; the Supreme Court reversed the conviction. The second trial, nearly 14 weeks long, resulted in a hung jury.

Only a sprinkling of spectators was in the courtroom as Judge Robert K. Syer, presiding judge in both previous trials, set the date. No attempt was made by McKenzie to have Lamson admitted to bail although the former Stanford University press executive has been in jail now for longer than two years. He spent 13 months in condemned row at San Quentin.

Mrs. Lamson, an attractive leader in campus life, was found dead in her bath on Memorial Day, 1933. McKenzie sought the long delay to work on a business that had accumulated during the recent long trial. Allan P. Lindsay, chief prosecutor, assented because of the proximity of the vacation season.

While Timothy and Rodney are on guard, William takes Joan aside and suggests that Ruth Andrews might be a private detective.

"You are despicable. And as for rivals. I wouldn't have married you for anything in the world!" William's face whitened, but he spoke quietly enough, with a slight tinge of sarcasm.

"And that is why I dislike you, silly Joan."

"WELL, at least, we understand each other now," her voice trembled in spite of her effort to speak coolly.

"Oh, no," he denied. "I understand you, but you don't understand me. When I think of the life I could have given you, of the things I could have taught you about living. . . . Bah! And you fling yourself away on a tuppenny Irishman who belongs in jail!"

Joan stared. Something in the veiled fury of his words startled her. "It—it was my money you wanted," she whispered. "Then, you too need money. Her eyes were suddenly frightened. "It—it's a curse, this money," she murmured, in a voice so low that he could hardly hear her.

"A very pleasant curse," he answered, laughing so casually that she wondered if she had imagined the fury she had sensed in his voice a moment ago. "But it wasn't the money," he went on. "It was I wanted—and shall always want."

"I don't believe you." "That is your privilege," she wanted to leave the room, but there was something about him that hypnotized her. She was afraid of him, and yet fascinated. She had a sudden belief that all the men in the house, he was the most dangerous.

To her immense relief, Meyers came to announce luncheon. After telling him to take two trays to Timothy and Rodney in the dining-room, where Stephen and Ruth were already waiting.

LUNCHEON was a silent, dull meal, and soon over. Afterwards, William strolled out on the veranda for a breath of air, and Stephen composed himself on the couch in the hall for a nap. Ruth disappeared upstairs.

ALL PERSONS SHOULD LEARN HOW TO SWIM

Every person should learn to swim, E. H. Carroll, assistant director of first aid and lifesaving of the American Red Cross told students of the Roosevelt high school yesterday.

In this way he contended, the yearly water fatalities, numbering over 7,000, could be greatly reduced. Three carrots were enumerated for the yearly death toll: carelessness, ignorance and viciousness. About 70 percent of drownings take place within 30 feet of safety.

"To reduce the drowning toll every person should learn how to swim," the speaker said. "A real swimmer is one who knows not only how to propel himself, but one who knows his limitations, the limits of his abilities, as well as the pleasures and benefits of swimming."

"There are certain rules, not only based on common sense, that anyone around the water should observe. No person who does not swim should use a boat or canoe. Every person should wait for two hours after eating before swimming. Cold water exhausts quickly even the most hardy, and one not in training should remain in such water for a few minutes only, and swim near shore. Any person expecting to swim any distance through strong water currents should be accompanied by a boat in which there is a life saver, and if possible, one person who swims in addition to the rower. No sensible person swims alone."

"Adults who are teachers or who desire to be, should attend the first aid and aquatic school that will be conducted by the National Red Cross on the Russian River, June 16 to 27, for the training of water experts. The school is held at cost and the student is taught swimming, diving, life saving, boating, canoeing, water front protection, and similar subjects."

BRITISH WILL DEFAULT AGAIN ON WAR DEBTS

WASHINGTON, June 7. UP.—Great Britain tonight paved the way for another general default on the war debts owed to the United States by the former Allied Governments.

The British action was taken in a note transmitted to Secretary of State Cordell Hull by the British Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, on behalf of his government in reply to the "due bill" sent the British government by Secretary Hull on June 1, reminding Britain of the war debt repayments due on June 15.

The amount of this installment is $85,620,450.41, which must be added to the $279,746,711 which Great Britain is in arrears on previous installments.

The British note said his Majesty's Government found itself unable to meet this installment for the same reasons that it defaulted the December 15 installment last year.

The general default of the June 15 installment by all of the debtor governments, with the exception of Finland, is expected to follow the British move.

Due bills were sent to all of the debtors on June 1 at the same time the dining note was sent to Great Britain.

In the British note hope was expressed that eventually some revision of the debt agreements might be accomplished and it stated that the British government was compelled to suspend all further payments until negotiations for such a revision were undertaken.

Banana and Skimmed Milk Diet Affords Safe Method of Reduction

By CLAUD NORTH CHRISMAN, M.D.

LET us say it all over again. Yes, yes, our good plump friends, you may try the banana diet safely for the purpose of reducing and you may be fairly sure of results. Some of us would like you just as well the way you are, but if you will reduce we prefer you select a safe way.

We cannot stress too strongly that every attempt at reducing weight, especially girth, must be based on maintaining adequate nutritional values. The biggest idea in any of these efforts is that, unless we have some job that requires vigorous effort, most of us do not need over fourteen or fifteen hundred calories a day. And for most of us who are troubled with extra poundage, that is only an ordinary meal. When we talk of adequate nutrition we mean that we must have enough protein and plenty of minerals and vitamins if we want to feel fit for anything and not do ourselves more harm than good by the attempt to restrict our diet.

It is true that the banana-skimmed milk diet seems adequate for at least a limited period. It is palatable and provides a feeling of satisfaction that few reducing diets are able to give. Even if it is somewhat deficient in protein, this element as found in bananas is of a high quality and for some reason the carbohydrate of the banana does not make the usual heavy demands on the protein supply in the building processes and none of the tissues suffers for the lack of it.

Contains Little Fat

Unless you chisel by putting a little cream back in the milk or on your cereal, this diet will contain very little fat, and even skimmed milk has protein, minerals, and most of the vitamins of whole milk. Vitamin A is lacking, but that is provided in fair quantity in the banana.

For a change, buttermilk may be substituted for skimmed milk. In order to prevent constipation, here are some additions that can be made to the milk and banana: A head of lettuce, two cups of cabbage, one-half cup of boiled, unsalted, unbuttered greens, or two tablespoons of bran.

A strict diet on this plan consists of four to six bananas, four glasses of skimmed milk, and the above mentioned roughage for a day's allowance.

Only bananas that are fully developed and entirely ripe should be used. The roughage is eaten unsalted because salt is inclined to retain moisture in the body. Water to the amount of six large glasses daily is allowed.

A Few Answers

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES: Here are several questions on the distressing condition known as acne. One reader has large red bumps on his face. W. L. C. wants to learn what to do for a red, blotchy complexion, where the veins of the nose and cheeks look as if they are about to come through the skin. Another subscriber is Mrs. J. H. A., whose young daughter has about overgrown the eruption, but is grieving over the scars and blue spots left behind.

Acne seems to be a combination of imperfect elimination and an infection of the sebaceous glands. We use vaccines successfully in many of these cases. The system must be cleaned out and the infections overcome. The applications of masks made of castles, ranging from buttermilk to tar, are good for bringing fresh blood to the surface.

Without knowing the texture of the skin, I could not decide on the strength of the treatment. For the over-evident blood vessels, there should be astringent lotions and a light film of zinc oxide ointment applied daily. In the case of the young girl, the scars indicate that the damage is established.

About the only absorbent remedy that promises results is iodine. A mild iodine ointment massaged gently over the scars might make them grow smaller. High frequency electrical treatments are used in the ordinary keratoses, which is another form of restricted circulation in the tissues.

Profiles For Today

May Irwin Comes Back Briefly

By TALBOT LAKE

WHEN people retire from public life they are generally forgotten until their obituaries appear in the paper, but every now and then some personage who knew fame comes back momentarily to set memories stirring. One of the country's favorite comedienne of all time, May Irwin, recently was lured back in the spotlight for a moment when she sang her famous old number, "The Frog Song," as a feature of the Mark Twain celebration in New York City.

May, who now is seventy-three, did "The Frog Song" for the first time in the old Bijou Theater in 1895, when "The Widow Jones" was a hit. That was when handsome cabs, high hats, lobster suppers, and wine in slippers were the usual thing in night life. That was also when Mark Twain was at his height and took an active interest in city doings. He became very fond of the song, and went to hear May sing it over and over again. That is why she was asked to sing it at the Twain celebration.

It sounds simple enough to get a former star to sing a number she did far back, but in Miss Irwin's case there were difficulties. To begin with, she belongs to the group of celebrities who prefer to have announced their retirement, and in the second place, May has a summer place in the Thousand Islands that is the apple of her eye, and to get her away from it for even a day is a herculean task.

She and her husband, Kurt Elsfeldt, have a low, spreading cottage on the brink of a gently sloping hill which overlooks the St. Lawrence River and some of the islands. Kurt does some gentlemanly farming, while May plays the hostess to a never-ending stream of callers. (She is one of the best cooks in the world, and once wrote a book on it.)

When she received the message asking her to sing, she could not at first remember the words or tune of the song, but Kurt tried a few words tentatively and it came back.

Paris Turns to Grecian Lines

By IRENE VAIL

New York—Life in Paris seems to be just one long dressmaker's opening after another. There are only four during the year, but it does seem as though echoes from these events were never ending.

The mid-season opening—just over—are the ones which give exciting little inklings of autumn, but what is a late summer success is bound to be an early fall one.

Many reflections of the Grecian idea were seen at the Paris openings, most of them introduced classic or statue drapery. Lanvin and Patou are the chief sponsors of the Grecian mode, although others also favor it. Schiaparelli, always different, gives her drape an Oriental twist. It was she who introduced the serai, a heavy covering scarf, but others have now adopted it.

Accessories, always necessary, are more important than ever. The sensible woman, when she can, makes them wearable. A scarf, for neckwear is obligatory that way. There are dainty lingerie sets and smart pique ones. Wide revers are a mode of the moment and are practiced in the heavier cottons. Wide waist pieces are often chosen, not always white either. Pink and yellow are favorite shades.

Sketched today, at left, full-length fourth wrap, with three-quarter length veil, has a sailor collar and deep cuffs of red fox. The wrap over a tunic dress in chrysanthemum is threaded in silver and lined with a silver slip.

The second costume is in blue chiffon with pleated neckline, made with yoke embroidered in silver.

Mature Girl Neglects Self By Overwork

By JACQUELINE HUNT

IN WARM, leafy June all of the accent is on youth. It is a month of brides, of girl graduates and eager young vacationists. They are so much in the limelight that the older woman is apt to feel a bit left out of things. Do not let your daughters frighten you! You can step right along with them and share their fun, if you will only watch your appearance.

All women have their beauty points. The trouble is that the older woman often neglects herself when confronted with the problems of bringing up a family and doing her daily housework. Have you been neglecting yourself? If you have, then begin right now and plan for yourself a twice-weekly relaxing facial treatment and learn all of the newest tricks of make-up.

If your skin is dull and rough, it needs softening and stimulating. If your hair looks drab and uninteresting, you need a course of special treatments to improve its condition and consider a new haircut. The older woman is often converted from a colorless individual into a smart and stunning one simply by having a trim haircut and a deftly placed wave.

Study your skin carefully both under the bright sunlight and artificial light and note the basic color tones—are they yellowish or more florid? The right shade of powder, rouge and lipstick will bring out the most flattering tones in your complexion and subdue the duller ones. Skilled use of these same cosmetics will also accent your good features and make the less attractive ones less noticeable.

Look at your hands. Do you feel like hiding them? It is your own fault that they have become red and puffy and rough, when so little regular care would have kept them smooth and soft. Decide to give them a nightly massage, and see that you have a good manicure. Shape the nails only slightly to begin with and use a natural polish. Groom the cuticles carefully and then as your hands improve in appearance.

Get together a good assortment of cosmetics and beauty aids because you will need to do quite a bit of experimenting at first. Set aside a day for a real beginning and start by sleeping late. Let hubby or the children get their own breakfast, so you will be rested and in a gay mood for your beauty treatments. Even the first session behind locked doors will take years from your appearance.

We have a number of suggestions for youthifying the older woman. Watch the next few columns.

Beauty Tips

QUESTION: "A long while ago I read in your column a recipe for a softening mixture one could make for a beauty bath. Is there some kind of mixture that one could make to use in a shower bath?"—Kay.

You can make little "beauty bags" for using in your shower bath if you wish. Saturate them thoroughly with warm water, then step under your shower to wet your body. Step out from under the spray and scrub your body with the bags as you would with a washcloth. They are cleansing and softening. To make them, sew little bags about four by six inches and fasten a tape across the back to make them easier to hold. Fill with a mixture made from one-half cake castile soap, shaved fine, one-half cup almond or oatmeal and an equal amount of lavender flowers, dried rose petals andorris root. Sew the bags shut and use as needed.

Modes and Manners

QUESTION: "I am giving a dinner for my sister and husband on their fifth wedding anniversary. Can you suggest what kind of meat to serve for the main course? We have considered and voted against just. Now we're considering roast beef. Have you any ideas?"—Mrs. G. H. J.

ANSWER: The fifth wedding anniversary is generally celebrated as the wooden wedding. How about a planked steak, to help carry out the "wooden" idea? Wooden favors, place cards even, may be cut into squares from paper having a wood-like finish. Serve salad from a wooden salad bowl with wooden fork and spoon. Use wooden candlesticks and a wooden chopping bowl with fruit for the center piece.

QUESTION: "When you're invited to a dinner party and don't know whether to wear formal evening clothes or dinner clothes, how do you go about finding out?"—Helen M.

ANSWER: Call up your hostess and ask her.

Up-to-Date Recipes Drop Uncertainty

By JUDITH WILSON

EVEN though she is a beginner at the game, the modern girl goes about the business of meal planning and cooking as though she had had years of experience. She knows that she can find good recipes and that if she follows them, then exactly — measurements and cooking temperatures just as called for in the recipe — the results will be excellent.

If you are a new cook, however, you will be wise not to try too complicated dishes during the first few weeks. Keep the menus very simple and cook the things that you feel sure you can cook well. Then as you gain confidence in your ability, try more difficult things.

Here are some recipes that will help the beginning cook — and her budget.

Have the butcher cut one pound chuck steak into rather small cubes. Sear them in a heavy frying pan in a small amount of fat, then add four cups canned tomatoes, one large onion sliced, eight whole cloves, a bay leaf, a dash of paprika, one teaspoon salt and one section garlic. Cover and cook slowly for about two hours or until the meat is very tender. Remove the spices and serve at once in a ring of hot boiled rice or over hot buttered noodles. By the way this recipe will make enough for your husband's best friend if he happens to drop in just at meal time.

Orange Sherbet

This dessert can be made in the morning if you want to spend the afternoon at a matinee. Place one-third cup water and three-fourths cup water in a saucepan and boil for ten minutes. Add the grated rind of one orange and boil five minutes longer. Remove from the heat, strain, cool and add one cup one-half cups orange juice and one tablespoon lemon juice. Pour into the freezing tray of a mechanical refrigerator. Freeze until firm, then remove from the tray and beat until light. Fold in the beaten whites of two eggs and one-half cup cream whipped until stiff. Freeze again until stiff.

Strawberry Puffs

Melt one-half cup butter in one cup boiling water. Stir one cup sifted flour into the steadily boiling water and fat mixture. Cook stirring constantly until the mixture leaves the sides of the pan in a smooth compact mass. Turn into a mixing bowl. Beat one egg at a time very thoroughly until you have used three eggs. Beat steadily until the mixture looks satiny and breaks off when the spoon is raised. Use two teaspoons to make small rounds for cream puffs. Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees F.) twenty minutes, then reduce the heat and bake twenty-five minutes longer. With a sharp knife make a slit in the side of each puff. Fill with crushed, sweetened strawberries and top with whipped cream. Other puffs may be filled with a

MODERN WOMEN

Going Abroad? There Are Pitfalls, But Many Pleasures Offset Them

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

SOME friends are taking their first trip abroad, and because it has been my privilege to help them with suggestions the wanderlust has me in its grip.

"You've been abroad," said they; "tell us what to do and where to go in the three precious weeks we will have in Europe."

"Profiting by personal experience, as well as that of many others, don't try to see too much," I cautioned. "One is so greedy to see it all that the result is a terrible disturbance in the mind. Perhaps in the time too, for if one has a curiosity about native cooking there may be a penalty for gratifying that curiosity."

How I envy anyone seeing Paris for the first time. It is bound to be an emotional experience. Paris does not let you down. It's all one ever dreams of and more, although I must not forget that changes have taken place. The city has been given back to the French—the American tourists now being consigned to the suburbs.

But how difficult it is to know just which of the thousand and one things to see, will appeal most to someone else. Besides, part of the charm is to make one's own discoveries.

The fashionable side

To do the chic and fashionable thing one must, of course, have some idea of fashion's treadmill.

To be out of season at a French resort is being out of luck—that is, if you go for the sights and not the scenery.

"Go to Deauville before you go to Paris," I advised my friends.

"It's right across the Seine if you land at Havre and will save you the three-hour train trip to Paris and back," I explained; "too bad you will miss the apple blossoms, for apple blossom time in Normandy is something to see as well as to sing."

"Can't we possibly take in Rome and Berlin as well as London?" they asked. Possibly, by flying from capital to capital, but to what avail? One wants weeks, not months, in Rome, and then you're apt to come away with a jumble of ruins in mind and no clear conception of the place at all. Stick to Paris and London, I advised, with a glimpse of Versailles, Fontainebleau and Rheims.

I presume all good Americans will want also to see Chateau Thierry and the American cemetery just outside of Paris. As for London, who could digest London in a week?

Use Small Luggage

The tourist season having started, it occurred to me that the resume of the chat I had with my friends might be interesting to others. It included, among other things, such advice as not to take along huge trunks, because transporting luggage in Europe often costs more than the fare. And it's easy enough to purchase an extra bag if one purchases grow out of proportion to the original luggage.

The best of all advice anyone can give is to readjust all ideas on comfort and what constitutes a good breakfast.

Not that you will not be comfortable or go without breakfast, but it's going to be a different sort of comfort, as it most certainly is going to be a different sort of breakfast. You are going to get it in your room—and like it—and it won't consist of griddle cakes and sausages, and your favorite brand of coffee either.

Accommodate yourself to the situation and get in the spirit of the scenes. One doesn't go abroad to find everything just as it is at home. If that is the desire, why go abroad?

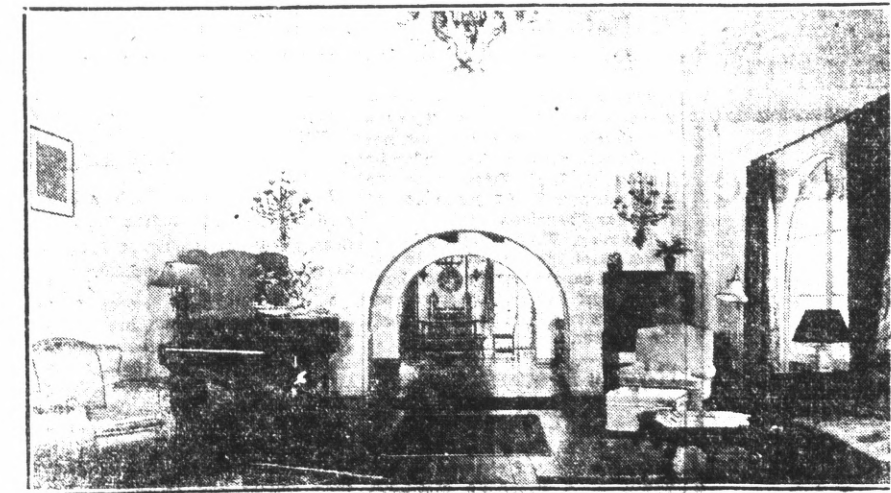

Short Cuts

Egg stains should be removed as soon as possible. The longer the delay, the greater the possibility of their becoming set permanently. For a fresh egg stain, use cold water at once, sponging it until it is completely wiped away.

When a patch is needed on papered walls, try to match the pattern as nearly as possible over the spot. Do not cut it out of the whole piece with a scissors, however. Tear it. This will give the patch a fibrous edge that will blend evenly with the old paper underneath when pasted on. And the net result will be a professional looking job.

KIN OF EGERS

Kelly is a brother-in-law of Ed Eggers, former Tacoma and West Coast rum-runner. Eggers was eliminated from the alleged suspect list of the Feds when he was found working in a cannery near Aberdeen, Wash.

Portland police said they learned that Dick Shively, also listed as a Federal suspect, is operating a barbeque and service station at Forks, Wash., near the cannery in which Eggers works.

Harold Nathan, top assistant to J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Bureau of Investigation, reached Tacoma from Washington.

A Department spokesman indicated that concentration of agents in the Tacoma area was ended although several of the 30 odd government men will remain here. Others were assigned to possible "hot" cities throughout the west.

The spokesman said the Department will not affirm or deny hereafter any rumors in connection with the case.

"Nine out of ten rumors on this case, about such things as impending gun battles and arrests of suspects, are false," he said. "We could easily deny them. But when we would refuse to comment on some rumors, that would give them an element of authenticity. So we'll neither affirm nor deny anything, until we are ready to make an official announcement."

Western Idaho sheriffs and deputies were called into a frenzied search for a "mouse-colored" Willys sedan with California license plates by Postmaster Floyd White of Elk City. White first reported he had received "seven or eight" ransom bills. The notes were not ransom bills, it was learned later, and the "suspects" were tourists.

An advertisement appearing on page five of this morning's newspaper carries a list of bartering stores for local shoppers today.

other fellow." Perhaps that is good logic, but hardly convincing after all.

Such a climatic defense has fallen within view of my eye and it is a classic. It is from a paper in a city not a thousand miles from Richmond. It is captioned "It's Not Too Hot To Still Call It Climate," and among other things it says:

"Compare our climate with the weather back in the Middle West and the East. For three months the people of the drought-stricken area of Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado and Oklahoma have prayed for rain. For three months the dust storms denuded farms, killed cattle and raised havoc in general. Wells and streams dried up. Then it began to rain. For two weeks there has been a series of floods. The death toll from this cause has exceeded 250 persons. The Middle West is now praying for a cessation of rain. Last fall it was the heat with temperatures up to 115 degrees. Last winter it was too cold, sub-zero weather prevailed from the Dakotas into Oklahoma. Yes, we still like our climate."

A MORALE YES.
Rather a doubtful picture, one is forced to admit, but I wonder if it is not the heat any less intense, or overcast the thermometer to have "left" any better in that section of California?

Of course there is a moral to be observed, else they would not have been written down in Richmond where the prevailing winds blow where they may and we live in climatic comfort every day in the year.

WAR GAME OF U. S. FLEET IS TERMINATED

ABOARD THE U. S. S. PENNSYLVANIA, AT SEA, June 7.—"UP" A surprise message from Admiral Joseph M. Reeves, commander in chief of the United States battle fleet, today ended the navy's most comprehensive peacetime battle maneuvers in the North Pacific.

Surrounding units of the fleet were laying smoke screens in one of the most elaborate operations of naval "problem 16" when Admiral Reeves flashed the signal to cease the imaginary engagement.

The order was issued at high noon, slipping from battle formations, the powerful fleet swept quickly into a peaceful cruising formation and continued toward San Diego, Calif., where the maneuvers will be concluded officially with arrival of the fleet June 10.

"Cancel scheduled exercises this afternoon and Saturday," the admiral's message said.

Officers said cancellation of the maneuvers would not affect arrival of the fleet at San Diego where a gala reception for the homecoming naval officers and men is planned.

Completion of the mock engagement was signaled by Admiral Reeves a short time after Rear Admiral William H. Standley left the flagship Pennsylvania, rebroadcasting the light cruiser U. S. S. Memphis.

The Memphis speeded ahead and was scheduled to reach San Diego tomorrow night.

Rear Admiral Standley, who joined the fleet aboard the Memphis Wednesday after a late start from Honolulu, and Admiral Reeves were among the most interested observers witnessing an impressive aerial maneuver today.

Planes from the aircraft carrier Saratoga were successful in driving off a large force of destroyers in an opening clash in which the destroyers theoretically were seeking to attack the battleship forces.

Noted Demos To Speak At June Banquet

The advisory board of the Phelan Democratic Club last night offered hearty cooperation to the Democratic County Central Committee's "On with Roosevelt" banquet and rally scheduled for June 27th, with a substantial contribution of $50.00. Arrangements are being completed to have a direct wire from Washington to the Lincoln School auditorium over which an administration leader will address the gathering.

Prominent Democrats invited to the meeting include Maurice Harrison, Clifford C. Anzlin, John W. Lewis, Culbert C. Olsen, Mosley Jones, Frank Hennessy, Chauncey Tramuto, Martin I. Welch, and Brice Mace.

LAVAL WINS IN POWER BATTLE IN NEW CRISIS

PARIS, Saturday, June 8. UP.—Senior Pierre Laval's new "cave" government won its first major battle in a stormy session of the Chamber of Deputies today, gaining "extended power" through October 31, to rule by decree and check the trend toward financial chaos.

The vote reversing the government's 1934 to 1935 budget was 100 to 160. Laval won with a coalition of the new majority which had remained in the fall of two cabinet during the past week.

In the closing debate he made a brilliant defense of his policy. Laval's severe and stark economic measures and stressing that the present deficit of 10,000,000,000 francs must be wholly absorbed if possible.

"Before the end of the year the treasury must provide 9,555,000,000 francs," Laval said. "There are no more when we must take responsibility. I took mine, now you take yours."

It was understood Laval intends to end parliament on at least a four-month vacation before the end of June.

The powers extended to Laval, who will be a "limited dictator" for five months, were confined definitely to a fight on vaccination and defense of the franc. He did not seek or receive the "full power" which brought the downfall of the cabinets of Pierre Etienne Flandin and Fernand Bonissou, who sought to allow the cabinet virtually to rule the franc by decree.

Faced with heavy treasury requirements a week from now, the government intends immediately to decree protective measures which are expected to deal chiefly with the budget.

out in the house, President Roosevelt told newspapermen at his press conference that the administration welcomed voluntary codes, but that the supreme court had made a ruling in the Schechter poultry case and that the New Deal would abide by the spirit and letter of that decision.

Labor, restless under the loss of its right to collective bargaining, searched for a formula that would put some other economic weapon in its hand.

REJECT AMENDMENT

Just before the final vote the house rejected an amendment offered by Representative Maury Maverick, Democrat Texas, to repeal the section of NRA which suspended the anti-trust laws. The majority of the house took the position that the supreme court decision already had repealed that section.

OPEN FIRE

The Republicans chose Representative Carl Mares of Michigan to open the fire of ridicule against NRA.

"Why should we waste two hours debating this trivial business?" Mares asked. "The whole thing has been a farce and still is. Why, only yesterday the Republican members of the ways and means committee were excluded from the room while Donald Richberg and the Democrats got together and brought out this resolution."
